

The Binocular Sky Data Privacy Statement

Introduction

Following the introduction of the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), which came into force on 25th May 2018, we would like to let you know what The Binocular Sky does with personal data given to it by members of the public.

Firstly, we strongly believe in protecting your personal data, which is why we collect only the absolute minimum data where necessary.

Basis for obtaining Personal Data

When you contact The Binocular Sky by email, or through a contact form on <http://binocularsky.com>, we request a minimum of data to enable us to respond to your contact.

Data Processing

The Binocular Sky lawfully processes your personal data; by which we mean we may store any of the following information:

- Name
- Email address
- Physical Address
- Telephone numbers

Emailed data will be stored on The Binocular Sky's email system, which is encrypted and password-protected. They will also be stored on the email server of The Binocular Sky's service provider. They will only be used for the purpose of responding to your contact. They will be deleted at any time that you request.

When you contact The Binocular Sky by telephone, your phone number may be stored in the telephone's call log. It will be deleted at any time that you request.

The Binocular Sky Newsletter

When you subscribe to The Binocular Sky Newsletter, the subscription will be handled by the MailChimp service and your data will be stored by MailChimp and handled in accordance with its Privacy policy. The BinocularSky receives notifications of each subscription and unsubscription; these are deleted after 30 days and it stores none of your personal data after this.

Data Sharing

The Binocular Sky is compelled to share personal data if required to do so by law (e.g. the Police). Such circumstances would include for the prosecution of any offence committed.

Also, personal data may be shared if there are any legal disputes between The Binocular Sky and any person.

Your Rights

You have the right to ensure that we process your personal data fairly and where we do hold your personal data, that information is accurate.

You have the right to ensure that we do not hold personal data about you longer than is necessary and to have those data removed (also known as the right to be forgotten or the right to erasure).

If you wish these data to be removed at any time, please contact The Binocular Sky.

Data subject request

To make a request to see what data we hold, what processing The Binocular Sky does with your personal data or to have data erased, you should contact The Binocular Sky at webmaster@binocularsky.com

The Binocular Sky will have 28 days to respond to your request. There is no fee attached to making this request.

Data Breaches and Complaints

If you believe there has been a data breach with your personal data, you should immediately contact The Binocular Sky by emailing webmaster@binocularsky.com

The data breach will be investigated and findings reported back to you.

Further information regarding GDPR and making a complaint to a higher authority can be found at the Information Commissioners' Office at www.ico.org.uk

Should you require any further details, please do not hesitate to contact The Binocular Sky at webmaster@binocularsky.com
